Jones Makes Sergeant

Jerry Jones

Jerry Jones, a 23 year veteran of the San Bernardino Police Department was promoted to the rank of Sergeant, proving that if you keep praying, have a level playing field, and don't give up you can win. He is the third African-American to hold this prestigious position.

For years Jones almost passed the oral examination. This is how he spent 17 of his 23 years on the force. It is a good thing because he knows the beat inside and out. He also knows investigation because he has been a detective for the past six years. The last two years he was promoted to the rank of Corporal and was a field training officer.

He is one of the officers who everyone knows and respects because he is active in the community.

Being Black & Deaf is a Challenge

By Cheryl Brown
Black Voice News

Being Black in America is trying for many, but being Black and deaf is even more of a challenge in this country and throughout the world. For two local women being deaf makes them reach out to their brothers and sisters to say: "We want a relationship with you. Be patient with us and take time, we can overcome our obstacles if we just care enough to listen to each other."

Recently Gail Riley and Tijuana Holston came to the Black Voice to talk about the many obstacles facing the Black deaf community. Of the estimated 4.8 million deaf people in America, Blacks are 5 percent, or an estimated 240,000 people. Many feel alienated from the Black community. "We are alienated because we don't fit in. We don't fit into conversations, yet we want to talk about things that only Black people can understand. We still like the same things. We still have the same ethnic desires and we love to be around people who of others who do not understand.

"My parents would not accept my deafness," said Holston through and interpreter. "They made me talk and not use sign language as a result I can read lips, talk and hear some sounds," she said. Holston, considered legally deaf but wears two hearing aids.

Riley, vice-president of the LABDA, is married to a Fire Captain and works at the California School For the Deaf in Riverside. She said she was always left out as a child, and even now feels that sometimes for him to have to translate for me when ladies are talking either. Sometimes I just like to carry on a conversation with women my age," she said.

Riley misses those kinds of conversations because impatient people become frustrated with her impairment. Even the Black National Conventions do not employ interpreters. "We'd like to go to the National Council of Negro Women's conference, they have many wonderful workshops but no interpreters," said Riley.

The pair complained about a NAACP one-day conference where four of their members paid the registration fee, but were denied an interpreter because it cost too much. It is this kind of insensitivity that the Black deaf are trying to educate the Black community about.

"Being Black and deaf often deprives you of the opportunity to commune with the Black community," said Pamela Lloyd, executive director of the Disability Action Center of Georgia, a nonprofit advocacy agency for the deaf, blind and physically disabled and president of the National Black Deaf Advocates (NBDA) in an article in the January 1996 Emerge Magazine. There are 17 NBDA chapters in the United States and more than 700 members. Their annual national convention will be held in Los Angeles beginning August 4-11 at the Doubletree Hotel, near the Los Angeles Airport, 5400 West Century Blvd.

The group has come a long way since its founding in 1982. They were founded because the issues of the Black deaf were not addressed by the one hundred year old National Association for the Deaf (NAD). Blacks were not even admitted to NAD until 1965. By

Dr. Kirkland Named AME Bishop

Dr. T. Larry Kirkland, Sr.

By Brad Pye
Re-Printed with Permission from
The Pittsburgh Courier

It's a long way from the cotton fields of Birmingham (Waylam) Alabama to Brookins Community AME Church in Los Angeles, CA.

To be exact, it's 2,000 miles or more. It's an even longer road from a pastorate (his first) at a tiny church in Carbon, Ala., to become the 114th bishop in the history of African Methodist Episcopal (AME) Church.

T. Larry Kirkland Sr., who started Brookins Community AME Church here in Los Angeles, CA. with a membership of eight and built it into a congregation of more than 8,000 members, made this successful trip on July 1, on the third ballot at the AME's General Conference in Louisville, KY. He has been assigned to the 17th District which embraces Zaire, Rwanda, Tanzania, Zambia and Malawi.

Rev. Kirkland felt disappointed when he didn't make bishop in 1992, and he thought of giving up.

But in his first appearance in the pulpit at Brookins Community AME since his elevation to bishop, Kirkland preached on the subject: "Never Give Up."

"When I left the general conference in 1992, I was just about ready to give up. I wasn't ready to give up and throw in the towel because I felt lost. I was used to losing. I played football in the South-western Athletic Conference, at a college where you have to be going there to get there - Alcorn State University. And we played in a league with Grambling, Jackson State and Southern. And in that day, Grambling had players like Ernie Ladd, Buck Buchanan and they all went into the pros. I was used to losing from time to time. Amen! But losing the election in 1992 was a different sort of a loss. It was a loss with deception. I had people come and look me right in the eye and say, 'You're going in.'"

"Now Ernie Ladd and Buck Buchanan never told me I was going in. They said 'you ain't going to make it. Amen!'

"But those guys, preachers, laymen, they went right out and played the trick that kept me from getting in. And that was disappointing because it's one thing to lose, but it's another to lose by hook and crook. And it was debilitating.

"I came home ready to throw in the towel, to accept just being a good pastor and going on my way. But my friends and loved ones came to my rescue and said: 'Never give up. If you can hold out, everything will be all right.'"

Even a couple of days before the election for bishop, one of Rev. Kirkland's fellow ministers told him to his face: "You won't make it. You won't become a bishop."

After all the votes had been counted, Kirkland, the native Birmingham, Ala., who comes from a family of 15, had realized his dream of becoming a bishop in the AME church.

The newly-elected bishop declared: "Thank God for friends around you who will encourage you when you're in the dumps, and down and out. And I got right back into the race.

Stop the Violence: Dominique Brown Sells Photos

Stop The Violence/Increase The Peace Foundation Speaks Out

Photographs are a way of sharing memories and recording eventful periods in our lives we wish to remember and share with others. It has come to our attention, the Women of STV/ITP, that Nicole Brown Simpson's sister, Dominique Brown, recently sold photographs of her dead sister and her niece and nephew to a publication.

The photographs, which spark questions in the minds of the Women of STV/ITP, are not, in our opinion the "memory sharing, eventful periods of our lives" type. These pictures are more along the lines of the "Penthouse Playmate" of the month. Although we have yet to view the photographs it is our understanding that they show a topless Nicole Brown Simpson. How, in good conscious, can anyone justify the selling of these types of photographs of ones' DEAD sister? Not only that, but the selling of these photographs to the National Inquirer, a publication not known for its journalistic integrity.

The Women of STV/ITP have endured countless verbal assaults here at our offices. We have been called everything but a child of the Creator. As recently as this past Tuesday, July 23rd we received a call from a woman who wanted to know if Brookings AME was a church. We informed her that indeed it was, to which she responded (and this is a quote)

"...well that's strange I thought it was a slaughterhouse since they have Black murderers there..." This call was of the milder variety. Within two minutes after that another caller so eloquently expressed her views in this way "...F all Black people..."

All of these assaults stemmed from a reception we held at the home of Mr. O.J. Simpson. We were faulted and assaulted because in the opinion of some, holding a reception to raise funds to combat all forms of violence at Mr. Simpson's home was the epitome of bad taste. We wonder what these people who have persecuted the Women of Stop the Violence/Increase the Peace Foundation think of the actions Ms. Dominique Brown,

African-American Congresswoman from Georgia wins Primary

Cynthia McKinney

By Elaine Hegwood Bowen
Re-Printed with Permission from
The Gary Crusader

Cynthia McKinney, an African-American second-term congresswoman from Georgia, has won the Democratic primary in a newly-remapped district in Georgia.

After federal guidelines, which held that majority-minority districts were unconstitutional, dismantled McKinney's 11th District, she decided to run in the 4th District in her hometown of Decatur, GA.

And she ran all the way to victory. McKinney garnered nearly seventy percent of the vote, in a district that census tracts show to be only between 35 to 40 percent African-American.

"It is far too simplistic to say that McKinney put together a coalition of African-Americans, white women and liberal groups," said William Fletcher, McKinney's media consultant. "This is sort of the conventional wisdom down here, and it's wrong. By winning with 67 percent, McKinney transcended race and gender."

McKinney urged political opponents not to debate each other but to battle where it's needed most. "Let's debate American values vs. extremism. Let's debate health care for the elderly vs. tax breaks for the wealthy. Let's debate a future of hope and fairness vs. a future of despair, limits and failure," McKinney said.

Open Letter to the Black Community

KVCR: Stop Pitting Hispanics and Blacks, It Won't Work

BY Dee Ortega

For the past nine months from October 1995 to the present time, I have been organizing support to bring a "Chicano" Radio Program to the Inland Empire. The request to air this program was targeted at the National Public Radio - K.V.C.R. 91.9 FM on the campus of San Bernardino Valley College. Due to the fact that our tax dollars help to fund national public radio, we feel it is our "American" right to ask for equal rights and access to public radio to hear music of our culture also. As a consequence for asserting our rights, rumors have been circulated that the Chicano/Latinos are out to "kick-out" the Black radio program, Love Affair with Sonny Love." It has gone as far as reaching members of the Board of Trustees.

I would like to go on record to state that it is not our intent or ever will be our intent to replace Sonny Love's program with ours. This deliberate rumor has been circulated for the sole purpose of inciting racial tension between the Black and Chicano ethnic groups. This "pitting the races against each other"; the "divide and conquer" tactic, will not be tolerated by the Chicano/Latino community and we hope you will stand united with us in fighting these injustices.

Let's put a stop to these dangerous rumors now. We must never forget and always remember that we share a common bond between us people "De Colores" (spanish word for "of color"). We both have suffered oppression, injustice, and discrimination as a people, as a race.

For the record we are petitioning for Sunday afternoons not Friday or Saturday nights when Sonny Love broadcasts his program.

Dee Ortega is Chairperson for La Raza Coalition for syndication of Sancho Show and Member of the Mexican American Political Association of Greater San Bernardino.

Jones Making the Promotion

He returns to the beat, but now he is the supervisor. "I can now use my experience to direct the patrolmen," he said. Jones views himself as a leader. "I am now in a position to help other Blacks in the department and give encouragement... there is opportunity (in the San Bernardino Police Department)."

Jones was born and raised in San Bernardino. He attended public schools, where he received awards for scholastic and athletic achievements. He entered Cal State Fullerton on a track scholarship and was selected as Male Athlete of the Year.

Upon his return to San Bernardino he was hired by the SBPD placing #2 out of 390 applicants hired.

In 1975 he started working with local youth in his spare time.

Jones explained to the Black Voice that the new chief, Lee Dean, has kept his word. "It was chief Dean who leveled the playing field and shows inclusion. I feel encouraged by the new chief. He has given minorities opportunities for employment and promotion."

Presently he is involved with the SELF youth program and the past president and current vice-president of the Inland Empire Black Peace Officers Association. He is on the Board of Directors of Inland Behavioral Services, a member of the Inland Empire African American Unity Coalition, and active member of New Hope Missionary Baptist Church where he serves on the Usher Board when work permits.

Hugh B. Price

By Hugh B. Price, President National Urban League Black Voice News

Along with millions of other viewers in this country and around the world, I watched last Tuesday the determined charge of the United States' women gymnasts toward this country's first-ever capturing of the Olympic gold medal for the team competition.

What I saw in their stirring, unified effort of extraordinary athleticism and true grit struck very deep chords.

For what I saw was a group of athletes -- able, literally, to leap and bound to extraordinary heights while maintaining astonishing control of their bodies in motion -- that looked like the United States of America we know.

There were young women of different European-American backgrounds, including one whose parents had emigrated to the United States from Romania less than a decade ago, a young woman who is Chinese-

Going For The Goal

American, and one who is African American.

Dominique Daws, Shannon Miller, Amanda Borden, Jaycie Phelps, Dominique Morceanu, Amy Chow, and Kerri Strug. Young Americans from different backgrounds and different regions of the country, representing what one reporter described as a "marvelous hodgepodge of personality and experience," all striving for a purpose larger than themselves: to bring glory and honor to America. (One of the seven members of the United States' men's gymnastic team, which performed ably, but did not medal in the team competition, is also African-American.)

The US gymnastic squads didn't look like this in the 1960s, the 1970s, and the 1980s.

They do now because in many other arenas than just athletic ones doors have been opened, and minds have been opened, so that many young girls who are African-American, Asian American, Latino American, or Native American are now also free to consider the possibility of following in the footsteps of these young women -- and then going on to make their own.

In that larger sense, these women gymnasts represent what the United States to a significant degree has become -- and what we must encourage all Americans to, not just accept, but embrace and celebrate.

That was the inspiration behind the formation earlier this summer of The National Voices for an Inclusive 21st Century, a joint project of the Anti-Defamation League, the National Conference, formerly known as The National Conference of Christians and Jews, the National Council of La Raza, and the National Urban League.

Struck by the wreckage of the Black and interracial churches that had fallen to the epidemic of arson attacks across parts of the land, we realized that we must urge with greater vigor that our nation examine carefully and compassionately what it means to be a robust, multi-ethnic democracy with room in our domestic economy for all.

We realize this goal is too urgent to be ensnared in election politics.

Thus we are calling for the creation -- after Inauguration Day, 1997 -- of a bi-partisan Presidential Summit on the future of our multi-ethnic democracy.

The summit's purpose would be to:

- * examine the primary sources of racism and other forms of alienation festering in our society, including the bigotry and disaffection that provoked the church burnings, the divergent reactions to the Simpson Case, the Freeman standoff in Montana, the Oklahoma City bombing, and the burning of a store owned by a Jewish merchant in Harlem;

- * study and publicize the myriad constructive ways in which communities and institutions have managed to combat racism and promote respect and understanding;

- * define an inclusive society and present that picture with all its positive implications to the American public on a continual basis;

- * promulgate income, employment and other public policies which re-connect the economically marginalized with society's mainstream;

- * call upon all of our institutions and all of our people to move resolutely and irreversibly toward an inclusive, civil and cohesive society.

America faces an exciting but uncertain future as we approach the 21st Century. Our economy is robust and competitive, but our social cohesion is enduring severe stress. Americans must pull together to save America from being pulled apart. The choice of which route we will take is entirely ours. We in the National Voices project, and many others we know, have chosen to work for cohesion and inclusion.

That's a goal worth far more than it's weight in gold.

Black and Deaf in America

1980 the Blacks who attended a NAD national convention were asking why there were so few Blacks in attendance only 25 of the 4,000 attendees were Black and co-founder Charles "Chuck" Williams reportedly blew his top.

Both Riley and Holston said one of the issues they feel the Black community should know about is captioning of Black movies, television shows, and video tapes. "We contacted BET (Black Entertainment Television) to ask for closed captioning (sub-titles which can be specially activated) they refused to even deal with the issue," said Riley. One of the main issues that will be discussed at the convention will be BET.

Holston wants to be the first deaf cosmetologist. "The Black deaf are discouraged to go to school for anything like cosmetology and you cannot get grants, loans, or scholarships to go because they do not feel you can be successful," said Holston. She is frustrated because she is not taken seriously.

Violet Ponder-Rose, a Job Coach with the Vocational Career Department at the California School of the Deaf agrees that deaf children are put into low paying jobs and because of discrimination they don't have the same opportunities as other people. "They can do anything they just can't hear," she said.

Ponder-Rose believes that the key to reaching people with all types of backgrounds is missing in our Black communities, especially as it relates to our organizations.

Black and Deaf in America: Are We that Different? by Ernest Hairston and Linwood Smith states "....the lack of sufficient Black role models and the overall racial situation in the school deprive many Black deaf youth of the strong sense of racial pride many normally hearing Black young people have. This added educational deprivation and the communication difficulties which are inherent in deafness, leaves the problem of Black deaf people desperately in need of the attention."

The book cites that unemployment rates for Black deaf persons are much higher than those of White deaf persons. Also few Black deaf persons go beyond the eighth grade in school. Because there are so few Black deaf professionals in the field of education and rehabilitation, most Black deaf children have no one to emulate and are given no inspiration to succeed.

The main problem is the Black deaf are, for the most part, undereducated and underemployed.

Both Gail Riley and Tijuana Holston are working hard to change that stereotype in the Inland Empire. Both women serve as role models for children who have no role models. Holston says that when she starts her own cosmetology school for the deaf she will change the stereotype that the deaf cannot learn to do hair. "We are still Black, we like to look good too," she said.

Violet Ponder-Rose, who knows Riley personally says, "Gail is a high functioning deaf person, she is employed as a counselor, supervises students and the role she plays is important. She affects children's lives."

Both say their lives are enriched by their spiritual life. "I love my church. They are like family to me. If it were not for the church Calvary for the Deaf (off the Riverside 91 freeway), I don't know what I would do," said Holston.

Both women want the Black community to pay closer attention to people with impairments and take a little time to understand. "We do not mind writing or lip reading or using a simplified sign language. If people will just be patient with us."

Ponder-Rose explained that people must be willing to know about another culture, the main key is communication. She is an interpreter but is not certified which makes her apprehensive about signing for people. However she can carry on a conversation with any deaf person. Holston feels we need more people like her. More Blacks should learn to sign so they can interpret when they communicate or when needed by a group.

They encourage churches to institute sign language in the pulpit so that deaf people will feel welcome to come to services.

Riley is married to Andrew and they have four children, one is hard of hearing. Holston is divorced and has two children, both are hearing.

To Perm Or Not To Perm? That Is The Question

By Valerie Lewis Black Voice News

And for most sisters there is only one choice.

I remember when I was ten or eleven -- all my friends were slicking back ponytails, and I -- well let's just say all the water and grease couldn't hold me back.

Don't get me wrong. I did have an intimate relationship with the hotcomb. But after years of burned earlobes and the smell of sizzling hair still fresh in my mind...One by one we girls got hip to the process. That is, we got hooked to the chemicals. it only took one visit -- maybe for a special occasion like class pictures or a cousin's wedding -- but that was all it

Does that sound harsh?

No, harsh is how the new growth feels a month after you decide to perm no more.

Harsh are the comments that strangers feel obligated to make, "Sista, I know where you can get that mess taken care of!"

They tell you this as you try unsuccessfully to hide underneath colorful scarves and bandanas.

"I thought natural was in," you moan to your girlfriend with her freshly done do courtesy of miss bea's house of hair.

"Girl, what's going on with your hair?" she asks as the sharp smell of Revlon Lye/no Lye Super/Ultra Super lingers in the air long after she's gone (to the store to buy new rollers and a shower cap).

Ms B told me the sponge rollers are causing my breakage -- and humidity is a definite no no. And Antoine, your old stylist, when he sees you at the drugstore looking for the product -- Bone Strait or Wavy Sheen bounce and body with natural ingredients!!

Oh wait, never mind. It's a perm.

And Antoine standing, staring at you, as you pick up/put down each product.

"Girl, I can fit you in tonight. And you know Friday's my busiest night," he says as he stands there with his hands on his hips with his drawn out lisp - (it's not girl it's GIRRRRL) -- you know what I'm sayin.

Or when your mom, your own mother chases you through the house with a brush, a big ole back scrubbin' lookin brush mind you -- talking about, "Try Rio, Try Rio, it's natural. I saw it on TV."

Of course, three weeks later, a tumbledweed of hair comes out with her comb.

But don't worry, cause Ebony's mom hooked her up and now her hair is down to here.

Now that's harsh.

Valerie Lewis is in her final year of undergraduate study at Long Island University in Brooklyn, NY.

She threw out her hotcomb four years ago.

"Building A Better World For A Brighter Tomorrow"

Charles Ledbetter
Black Voice News

"God said, 'let's build a better World,' and I say, 'How?' The World is such a cold, dark place and so complicated now. I'm afraid and helpless. There's nothing I can do! But God in all his Wisdom said, 'Just Build a Better You!'"

Anonymous

The World is witnessing an example of a group of young people building better selves as they compete in the World Olympic Games.

The educational system is a very important step toward building a better you. We all can compete in the education game.

As we allow ourselves to progress from one level of education to the next, often we fail to realize the opportunities we ignore or let slip away, or the choices we have that will allow us to become a part of a society that will allow us to share our knowledge. As a result of sharing this knowledge, we become better "you and me" as we help make the world a more peaceful, beautiful place for all people.

The progress of our young people is our nation's most important product. A top educational program is the answer to many of our present-day problems.

Albert Einstein reflected on the purpose of man's existence when he said, "Strange is our situation here upon earth. Each of us comes for a short visit, not knowing why, yet sometimes for a divine purpose. From the standpoint of daily life, however, there is one thing we do know: We are here for the sake of others -- for the countless unknown souls with whose faith we are connected by a bond of sympathy. Many times a day I realize how much my own outer and inner life is built upon the labor of people, both living and dead, and how earnestly I must exert myself in order to give in return as much as I have received."

You are in the position to help develop America into a better place for everyone. As we expand our vision of self through education and right living, we learn to use the unlimited greatness that "God" has made available to all of us as we go about the business of developing our bodies and souls.

If we are to achieve self-mastery, high self-esteem, and live our dream of a better world, we all must make a conscious, deliberate, and determined effort to be the best persons we can be.

We must focus our energy on developing minds that love and respect our fellowman and maintain positive thoughts that view the world as a wonderful place to live. If we work together to maintain that ideology, we will develop the type of character, commitment, and awareness that will encourage everyone to be the best persons they can be. Today is ours; let's make it a good one.

Together, we can.

40 Babies Make Their Mark...

At a ceremony recently in Sacramento, California, three exceptional organizations announced that they have teamed up to promote a healthy and literate future for children. The Birthing Project, a national organization that focuses on lowering infant mortality; Black Books Galore, a business that encourages African-American children to read books featuring African-American characters, authors and illustrators; and African Pride, the company known for its hair and skin-care for people of color, make up this consortium.

Brian K. Marks, President, African Pride, announced his company's special relationship with the Birth Project and Black Books Galore. Marks joined 40 new mothers, babies and "sister-friends" at a Birthing Project Baby Shower celebrating the healthy birth of these children. Kathryn Hall, founder of the Birthing Project, and Marks assisted the babies in making footprints on a giant map of the U.S. This map signifies the 35 Birthing Project locations across the country.

African Pride is committed to helping children; therefore, the company has embarked on a significant cause relationship with the Birthing Project. The Birthing Project focuses on

Our Bodies

Ernest Levister, M.D.

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: Is Olestra all they say it is? F.M.

DEAR F.M.: Fat substitutes have been on the market in one form or another for nearly 30 years. They all share one drawback - they can't withstand the cooking temperatures that natural fats can. For this reason fat substitutes have not been used to prepare chips, crackers, cheese puffs and other fried foods.

Olestra, marketed under the trade name Olean, by Proctor and Gamble, can stand up to the heat of a deep fat fryer and is calorie free. This designer fake fat resists the assaults of the digestive enzymes and allows the entire structure to pass through the body without being absorbed.

The configuration, though, has a down side as it enables the molecules to pick up a host of fat-soluble nutrients including beta carotene and other carotenoids and vitamin A,D,E and K and takes them along for the ride. Some studies found that it reduces the volunteer's blood levels of beta carotene by 60%.

This designer fake fat resists the assaults of the digestive enzymes...

There is considerable evidence that when levels of beta carotene and other carotenoids fall, the risk of cancer, heart disease and macular degeneration (a disease of the eyes) increases.

In other tests, Olestra is also associated with anal leakage, the uncontrolled seepage of the fat substitute from the body which leaves greasy underwear stains. The problem was reduced by reformulating the product. Despite this the product might cause diarrhea or gastrointestinal disorders.

Given the potential side effects, it makes far more sense to cultivate a taste for foods that are naturally low on fat than to satisfy our "fat tooth" with snacks fried in Olestra.

Dr. Levister welcomes reader mail concerning their body but regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters. Your letter will be incorporated into the column as space permits. You may direct your letters to Dr. Levister in care of Voice News, P.O. Box 1581, Riverside, CA 92502 decreasing infant deaths by facilitating better birth outcomes. This is done by providing a pre-natal support program comprised of volunteer "sister-friends" working with expectant mothers during pregnancy and continuing well into the early years of a child's life. Pre-natal care, childhood education classes and more are provided by the Birthing Project in 35 cities nationwide.

African Pride, launched in the U.S. in 1991, introduced hair and skin-care products targeted to women and men of color. African Pride now exports products to Canada, Europe, Africa, the Caribbean and Australia. African Pride products are available in health and beauty aid sections of major retail chain stores, beauty supply outlets and independent retail stores, wherever fine beauty products are sold.

Family Talks

Joseph Bailey, II M.D.

With a box of chocolates, we can either keep it, share some, or give it all away. In managing our love during the day, we do one of these three things each time a situation arises with other people. Even to ourselves, we distribute love completely, partially or not at all. As an analogy, let us use the water faucet we have in our homes. By turning the knob in certain ways, we control the flow of water: turning the knob clockwise a little gives a trickle of water; turning it somewhat more gives a partial flow; turning it all the way open makes for a full flow. We can, of course, turn it all the way off.

The way I see it, Divine Love — the source of human love — flows into us with the knob in the fully opened position. This "undiluted and unpolluted" pure love sits in a reservoir that is present in every cell of our body as well as in all its spaces. In other words, we are dripping with love that is raring to be used. This perfect love, along with life, feelings, and free-will are all part of our birth gifts. It is because of our free-will that we change spiritual love to human love. Our free-will regulates the times we use our love, the degree of purity of our love, as well as the speed and the amount of love that flows through us and then out of us.

If our love flow has stopped or is only a trickle, all we have to do is to make a free-will decision to open fully our faucet of love...

To give only a piece of chocolate, to give none, or to take back pieces previously given to someone is not the same as giving a partial flow or "no flow" of love to someone, or to ourselves. When the knob of our love faucet is fully open, it can just as easily be an act of love to give the whole box as it can to not give any. The key is whether or not it is our well-thought out intention to act lovingly. Having a free flow of love going through us, on to us, and around us means that we are in harmony and therefore are able to create or enhance that which is good and right. In other words, all of our think, feel, say, and do actions will be about promoting life and making things better.

If our love flow has stopped or is only a trickle, all we have to do is to make a free-will decision to open fully our faucet of love. Like magic, we will immediately get the full benefits of love flowing through us. Here is the method for opening the faucet; ask "WHICH DECISION WILL BEST CREATE OR ENHANCE ULTIMATE HARMONY FOR THE GREATER GOOD?" Then follow the best decision.

Questions & Answers

Dr. Reginald Woods

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, Ephesians 5:23 makes a statement referring to the "savior of the body." Who is the savior of the wife's body,

Who is the Savior of the Body?

Christ or the husband? AW, Rialto, CA

ANSWER: Marriage is compared to the relationship between Christ and the church. If we study the books of the Bible we can clearly see that Christ is loving, caring, patient, gentle, encouraging, faithful, peaceful, trusting, honest and everything the church needs to be successful in life. This passage area describes the relationship that husbands and wives should enjoy. Therefore, it is apparent why God wants us to look at this relationship as a pattern for our marriages.

We have only one savior. Man cannot be the savior of women, only Jesus Christ can. Man can and should however, love and relate to his wife as Christ does the church. If he does this, he will be the leader of his home. Jesus is the savior of our spirit and body.

If you have a question that you would like answered, write: Dr. Reginald L. Woods, Life Changing Ministries, P.O. Box 9778, San Bernardino, CA 92427-9778

BARGAIN THRIFT (FORMERLY LUTHERAN THRIFT)

By Linda Phelps
Black Voice News

Ron Wagoner never thought he would one day own a thrift store, after all, his career was in Mortgage Banking. Today, he refers to himself as the Fred Sanford of the nineties.

Ron, a native of a small town in Texas, grew up in Los Angeles. He is a graduate of Locke High School and has attended Riverside City College.

Ron has always been fascinated with business, when in High School, he had a teacher who inspired him to seek a career in business. It wasn't long after high school he landed a management trainee position with Dial Finance (Norwest Financial), hit the glass ceiling, then went to work for one of the world's largest banks, Citicorp. This was a move up the ladder to an executive position, Ron and his family were transferred to the Bay Area to clean up a problem branch and bring it back to profitability. This was one of many challenges given to him and all were conquered. He found himself bored and therefore sought challenges outside the job. Finally, in June of 1995, he called his wife and told her he wanted to do something that he could really get into and give back to the community, Bargain Thrift was born.

Bargain Thrift is unique in its own way. The book section is not only large but it is organized by subject matter, there is even a section devoted to the medical profession. His clothing includes brand names and the condition of the merchandise is very good. He sells appliances, furniture, sewing items, crafts, shoes, you name it!

A significant amount of the merchandise is donated. Determined to give back to the community and help those families in need. He sought out two charity groups who sends him families in need. At no charge he gives them clothing, shoes, etc. Ron has also developed a mailing list mostly for persons which extends special rates on clothing purchases up to 50% off.

There's still room for growth on this list!! "I find the prices at thrift stores much higher than what they should be, I am rolling those prices back to affordability."

The store is 3500 square feet of space, excellent parking and a very friendly atmosphere. If you are looking for a bargain or that something different, for furniture or a good appliance, a good book or a good color television this is the place, call now 351-8106, or go by and see for yourself, 4850 Jackson Street, Riverside, CA.

Black Chamber of Commerce Files Suit For Discrimination

Responding to verified complaints from within its membership, the National Black Chamber of Commerce, Inc., along with two small Black owned businesses filed a lawsuit alleging discrimination against African American businesses by U.S. West. They claim that U.S. West has knowingly and deliberately excluded African American businesses from its procurement process and even within its Minority and Women Business Enterprise procurement program. The suit was filed today in federal court in Denver, CO and it seeks $150 million in damages.

"We toiled with this matter for over eight months and reached the conclusion that we had no alternative but to file and bring this damaging situation to a conclusion," says Harry Alford, Chairman & CEO of the Chamber. "They seemed to have started with this anti-Black direction in 1991 and have kept rolling with it through today. How dare a regulated monopoly decide to exclude members of its captive customer base from making a living."

According to NBCC boardmember Fred Jordan of San Francisco, "Their numbers show that in 1995, African American businesses accounted for only 0.34% of the total purchases of $4.3 billion, while other minority and women businesses accounted for 7.18%. They have actually discriminated within their own minority and women program!" Over 92% of 1995 purchases were given to White male owned businesses.

The two small businesses named as plaintiffs, OJC Transfer and Delivery of Phoenix and A-1 Job Movers of Des Moines, claim to be a part of Black owned transportation firms that were dropped from the business loop - at about the same time - and the lost business was immediately turned over to White male owned businesses. The businesses claim their performance was worthy and consistent, but the "rug was pulled from under them" with a pattern of calculation.

According to Rev. Don Jones, a boardmember from Oklahoma: "The Black communities in the 14 state area of U.S. West have suffered dearly because of this discrimination. How many unemployment checks, welfare checks, and blighted communities have come from the mean spirited and illegal practices of this giant telecommunications company. It is acting like a scourge on the community and we - our businesses, our churches and all concerned - will not stand for it."

The NBCC and the businesses are represented by Eric E. Vickers, Vickers & Associates, a nationally known civil rights law firm located in St. Louis, MO.

Exec's Meet at Urban League's BEEP Conference

ATLANTA -- Recently, the Black Executive Exchange Program (BEEP) kicked off its 27th annual conference at the Hyatt Regency in Atlanta, GA. AT&T Chairman Robert E. Allen delivered the keynote address.

The conference, entitled "Passing the Torch: Creating Future HPBCU Champions for Business, Industry and Government," featured three days of workshops on corporate ethics, entrepreneurial success, financial health and navigating organizational change.

BEEP, a National Urban League initiative, is comprised of senior- and middle-level managers from corporations, government and professional firms who volunteer as visiting professors at historically predominantly Black colleges and universities (HPBCU).

The conference participants included American Express Financial Services, Coca-Cola, Miller Brewing, Mobil, PepsiCo, Procter & Gamble, UPS and other Fortune 500 executives offering networking and leadership training opportunities.

"BEEP has been instrumental in keeping African-American students competitive as they enter corporate America," said Hugh B. Price, President of the National Urban League. "Since 1969 BEEP has been a great success."

Curt Fields, AT&T, Vice President for Financial Communications and 1996 Conference Chairman, believes corporate participation in BEEP produces win-win situations. "Corporations get an opportunity to tap talent groomed for the next generation, and their employees are able to share expertise and give something back to their communities. We would not be able to deliver this critical mission so successfully if it were not for the commitment of individuals such as Virgis W. Colbert."

Colbert is Senior Vice President - Worldwide Operations of Miller Brewing Company and Chairman of BEEP's Executive Advisory Committee. Fields added, "We are confident that Dennis Dowdell, Jr., of the Henry Ford Health System, and successor to Mr. Colbert as Executive Advisory Committee Chairman, will do as great a job."

BEEP was founded in 1969 to assist college faculty with preparing African-American students to enter and compete in the corporate world. In the pilot year, fifty-one companies and government agencies responded with sixty-one Black executives and professionals. These companies also absorbed the cost of travel, time away from the office and related expenses.

Today numerous corporations participate through one of the following BEEP Activities: Career Awareness and Planning Seminars (CAPS);

Special Business Seminars; Innovations for Women; Adopt-A-School; Mentor Associate Program (MAP); or the Distinguished Lecture Series.

Founded in 1910, the National Urban League is the premier social service and civil rights organization in America. Its mission is to achieve social and economic equality for African-Americans. The League has affiliates in 114 cities, 34 states and the District of Columbia.

Flame Burns Through Anger, Sadness and Tragedy

Heavy hearts among Olympians, doesn't dim performances

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

ATLANTA - The ignorance of a few can't break the spirit of many . . . and in this case the many are the athletes, the Olympic family and the millions of American and international fans from around the world who are in Atlanta to support and celebrate peace through sports competition. When the news flashed upon the world's TV screens that a pipe bomb had exploded in the wonderfully designed Centennial Olympic Park, I like every concerned person, prayed for the victims and their families and at the same time couldn't help but question the continuance of the Olympic Movement. When the world's largest and greatest peace movement through athletic competition results in lives lost . . . you must wonder if the Games have gotten too big and if the world has gotten to crazy for an under taking of this size to continue in its present format.

As the ugly and gross accounts of this tragic occurrence was displayed over and over, my initial thought was: "We've gotten to the point where every knuckle head with an I've-been-wronged-agenda, will view the Olympics as the perfect stage for their sick and cowardly attacks against perceived wrongs being enacted here in the United States - or even around the world." When you consider the Games are being telecast to almost every country in the world and the fact that a record 197 nations are in Atlanta in participation of sport, then the opportunity for unparalleled exposure the Games present may be too much for the world's idiots to pass up. But, as the injury tally (111) and the death toll (2) was defined, I became better focused and did not make decisions based on emotion. Yes, the Olympic Games should continue, and, they're even more important than ever. It's important that the human spirit be proven greater than one - or even ten - self-serving individuals that are interjecting their will through terror upon all the fair and decent people on this earth. The Games will go on," said International Olympic Committee Director General Francois Carrard. "The Games will go on . . . although it's unfortunate that we are living in a society where violence and violent acts are not absent." Added United States Olympic Committee President Dr. LeRoy Walker: "We continue competition with heavy hearts and a sense of sorrow, but our athletes intend to compete in their events, and, we refuse to let the cowardly acts of those who right to showcase their wonderful skills on the worlds must renown sporting stage. "Sure the bombing was a distraction and I couldn't sleep that night," said U.S. Olympic wrestler Kenny Monday, "but I never thought they should cancel the Games, because it didn't happen in the village (Olympic) or at one of the venues. We are here to compete and I always hope nothing will change that." Can't the evil forces of the world claim victory if the Olympic Movement folds up the tent and go home - never to be seen again? "We asked ourselves if there was Iranians, Chinese, etc. The human spirit was at work on the streets of Atlanta as it was more noticeable than at The Olympic Centennial Park. The shower fountains, the merchandising mart, the AT&T, Coca Cola and Swatch fun zones, and many others not named. I didn't see one fight or any sign of racism, only people who barely speak the same languages haggling over pin trading - and that was all in fun. Yes, Atlanta was well on its way to reaching and achieving the Olympic theme of human solidarity, as thousands of people milled the booth-lined streets looking over the glut of overly priced merchandise for sale. Still the cost of Olympic memorabilia couldn't deter the love-fest going on in Centennial Park. It was the one place people without tickets to events could participate in the Olympic theme or spirit.

But, as quick as a flash of the light the detonated bomb produced, The Centennial Park funfest was turned into a ghost town, as the FBI and others searched the park for clues.

"We cannot let terrorism win . . . that is not the American way," said President Bill Clinton addressing the nation on his weekly radio spot. "The Olympics will continue, and, the Games will go on. The Olympic spirit will prevail." And President Clinton's words rang true, in less than four days after the bombing, The Centennial Park reopened, and the masses returned in full force to continue the funfest that had started along with the Games. But one group, the many merchants, never recovered and by the time the celebration restarted they had folded up their tents and left town - albeit with much lighter pockets. Still no one can deny this sobering fact: In the world we now inhabit there exist a dark underside - that is real and we never know when it will strike. Our task and challenge for the future is to continue to let freedom ring. Can we do it? Surely the Olympics is an important vehicle for bringing all the world together in friendship, health, sport and for the celebration of life. The flame needs to continue to burn, through good and bad. The overriding symbol of peace and harmony that is the Olympic Games, is much too real to let one monkey stop the show.

have so little regard for human life dictate the course of their lives here in Atlanta."

Carrard's and Walker's defiance reflected clearly the mood of the populace and athletes. Surely the athletes were rattled and knocked off stride by the unfortunate event, but their own personal agendas rose to the forefront, and rightfully so. The men and women who have qualified to represent their countries have toiled long and hard for many years for the anything we know or learned that would suggest it would be essential to stop?" said Anita DeFrantz, executive board member. "There was nothing to suggest it was essential that we stop (the Games)."

I've had the pleasure the past few days, prior to the cowardly act, to walk among the thousands - at one point estimated to be 1 million strong - of families, Japanese, Australians, Germans, Egyptians, South Africans, Americans,

Supporting Two Gold Medal Quest

Washington and Haskins add knowledge and skill to USA Women's and Men's basketball efforts

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

ATLANTA - Sure Tara VanDerveer of Stanford and Lenny Wilkens of the Atlanta Hawks are the head coaches for the '96 USA Basketball Olympic teams, but, the assistance of people like Marian Washington and Clem Haskins makes their jobs operate smoother.

Both Haskins and Washington are assistant coaches for the gold medal seeking men's and women's Olympic teams. Their input and steady guidance - as well as the effort of the other assistants - is the unseen support that does not receive much ink but is surely appreciated by the players and the head coaches of each team.

"I learned early on that through athletics you had a chance to be successful as long as you could get to the starting line at the same time everybody else gets there," Marian explained. "I got a lot of positive returns for my efforts and I'm very appreciative . . . I've tried to implement the things I've learned into my coaching and interaction with others." Marian brings to her assistant coach's position: Consistency, stability and integrity. Lasting - or enduring - 23-years as head coach at the University of Kansas and compiling a 432-252 overall record . . . speaks for itself. Marian was first introduced to USA Basketball in 1971 as a player on the USA World Championship team that competed in Sao Paulo, Brazil. She used that experience to become the first Black female head coach of a USA basketball team in 1981, when she navigated the Olympic Festival Midwest Team to the gold medal. Continuing to find success, Marian has led her Lady Jayhawks to seven NCAA Tournament bids to go along with six Big Eight Conference Tournament titles. Concerning her involvement with the Black Coaches Association (BCA) she notes: "I see the organization working to keep issues on the table, and, to be a voice in trying to support our young people and to fight for opportunity. Also, the inclusion of women's concerns in the agenda is something I will continue to push for."

Providing 16-years of coaching experience to Dream Team III's gold medal aspirations, Haskins, who has been at the helm of the Minnesota Golden Gophers for the past 10-years, indeed is a valuable resource to coach Wilkens and the NBA All-Stars.

Haskins can draw on his experience as an All-American at Western Kentucky ('67, '66), where he also became head coach ('80-'86), and, the nine outstanding seasons he produced in the NBA (Chicago, Phoenix, Washington) as tools in assisting the Dreamer's to implement the coaching staff's objectives. The NBA and USA Basketball merger - despite the complain of some - has proven to be a commercial bonanza for USA Basketball, the NBA and the Olympics - as evident by the 35,000 fans that's shown up each night in the Georgia Dome to watch the NBA stars. Haskins says the merger will "help improve basketball all over the world," and, he notes how in '92 the opposition asked for autographs and pictures after every game, but this time around is "playing harder" and is not afraid to compete.

The first coaching experience for Haskins in USA Basketball led to a gold medal, as he guided the North squad to the U.S. Olympic Festival crown held in Los Angeles in 1991. What else would you expect from a coach who has garnered 271 wins and has earned nine NCAA or NIT Tournaments berths - winning the NIT title in '93?

In coaching a team as talented as the Dream Team, what standards can the coaches possibly set for themselves and the team? "I think the thing here is as a coach you are never satisfied just because you get a win," Haskins said, "you want to do it in a basketball sense." Meaning that whatever offense you run you want to execute that and get the shots off those plays. Also, being consistent defensively where it leads to layups and great shot opportunities are the kinds of things we are looking for as coaches. We're concerned about the score, but the effort we put out each night is just as important to us."

Concerning the '96 Women's National Team, Marian noted: "I think this whole year has helped launch and keep in the public's eye women's basketball the (ladies have already set an Olympic single day attendance record, with over 32,000 fans clicking the turnstiles).

BOMBED OUT: Centennial Park after pipe bomb explosion.

The National Team's visibility has produced sponsorships and showed them that we can be marketable and can make money. We have commercials now and name recognition. We have proven we can play this game the way it's suppose to be played."

Is the Olympic experience rewarding and are you enjoying it? "Well, this is my first time in the Olympics, although I've coached numerous USA Teams, and I'm really enjoying representing my country and showing the world the kind of talent we have here," Haskins said. "I'm not concerned about the score, but the games itself. We have to play the game and not the score. "The key though to what we are doing is Lenny. He's a Hall-of-Famer and will be in the Hall as a coach too, because he's won 1,000 plus games (NBA's all-time leader) and is still working on it. I'd like to see him get his due because this guy has accomplished - if not more - as much as any coach in the game of basketball. Along with his NBA title, he has accomplished things no other American has ever done and should be a headliner. I'm just honored to be here working with a great guy like Lenny Wilkens." Added Marian: "I been involved (in USA Basketball) for a long while now as a player and coach, but this is still quite an honor. I feel it's a real blessing to be coaching this team."

Both Marian and Haskins have as personal agendas the uplifting of America's youth as a priority, and are not afraid to be considered role models. Each acknowledges they can touch people just by how they live their lives and the examples they set as achievers.

"I hope via athletics there's been some good things I've been able to share with some young people and that they've benefited from it," Marian said. "I believe that those of us who have been through it have a responsibility to talk to young people - not all will hear you - and help them maybe avoid some pitfalls. But most important is we need to encourage them." Added Haskins: "Every time I step out my door people watch me. I owe it to myself, the kids I coach and the youth I come in contact with to leave them with a positive experience - and it maybe a stern one - that they can call on if put in a troubling situation. You never now what thought or idea will stick with a person, so I try to share what little knowledge I have with as many young people I can."

With coaching veterans like Marian and Haskins lending an assist, VanDerveer's and Wilkens' gold medal journeys are probably being made a little smoother, cooler and calmer.

Jackson & Son Author New Book.....“Legal Lynching”

Jesse Jackson

Black Voice News

Shipping to bookstores ahead of schedule to coincide with critical death penalty issues now facing the Supreme court, is Reverend Jesse Jackson's first trade book: Legal Lynching: Racism, Injustice and the Death Penalty, Written with Rev. Jackson's son, Congressman Jess Jackson, Jr., Legal Lynching ($22.95, cloth) is published by Marlowe and Company, in association with National Press Books and distributed to the trade by Publishers Group West.

"Far too often, people, mostly poor and Black, are given the death penalty not because they committed the worst crimes, but because they had the worst lawyers...There is a great deal to be concerned about, or even ashamed of."

A comprehensive rejection of the knee-jerk solution to the rise in violent crime, Legal Lynching comprises a history of state-sponsored execution, a consideration of the statistical evidence, an examination of scriptural justification for the taking of a life, and, most chilling, the true-life stories of those condemned to die who were later found to be innocent. By dispelling the notion that justice is administered objectively and fairly in cases of life-and-death, Jackson's exposition is an inspiring call to action that offers viable alternatives to the death sentence.

Governor Mario Cuomo has advanced the following quote about the book: "It's not just his passion and eloquence that have made Jesse Jackson such a significant public voice over the last three decades, it is also the logic and reason that undergird his positions. That is manifest again in this good book by the Reverend. Using real people and real evidence, he makes a powerful argument against a reversion to barbarism and for a return to reasonableness."

"We have always had two systems of justice in America, one for the wealthy and one for the poor. We have also always had a double standard in the criminal justice system, one for Whites and one for people of color. The gravest injustices occur when a poor man or woman is wrongfully charged with a capital offense and sentenced to death. Wrongful convictions can be overturned, but wrongful executions can never be undone." (Excerpted from Legal Lynchings.)

"ALL THE THRILLS OF 'THE FUGITIVE' AND 'SPEED' FROM THE GUYS WHO GAVE YOU BOTH. A SENSATIONAL ACTION THRILLER."

County Enforcement Sweep in San Bdnno.

Supervisor Jerry Eaves Announces County Enforcement Sweep in San Bernardino

SAN BERNARDINO -- "I am proud to report on the successful San Bernardino County enforcement sweep in San Bernardino which took place on July 2, 1996," said Supervisor Jerry Eaves. "I would like to give special thanks to Sheriff Gary Penrod and Fire Chief Richard Sewell for their efforts in coordinating this operation," said Supervisor Eaves.

We pulled together County Adult Probation, County Fire & Code Enforcement, County Welfare Fraud, State Parole, San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, Southern California Edison, LA Cellular Security and TCI Cablevision. They targeted blight and crime in the areas of Muscoy and Little Third Street in San Bernardino. In all five teams and over 50 personnel were involved.

"We formed this County Community Improvement Task Force because we wanted to respond to citizens complaints in a thorough manner. We did not want to look at just one part of the problem. We wanted to look at the problem properties from every angle so that it taken care of. We had personnel on hand working together to handle every part of the problem," said Supervisor Eaves.

"We are committed to giving support to citizens who take pride in their homes and neighborhoods. We are going to serve notice on the violators who do not take care of their properties and present a safety risk to their neighbors," concluded Supervisor Eaves.

This is the first sweep of many more that are being planned. The next sweep is scheduled to take place in Bloomington. Any citizens in the County of San Bernardino may file complaints with the Code Enforcement office at 1-800-722-3181.

Foreman Pays The Inland Empire A Visit

George Foreman Knock's out the Fat in San Bernardino

"George wants taste! George wants juicy!" is what Cherie Calbom had to go by when she and George Foreman first set out to dispel the myth that to cut out fat we need to cut out taste and flavor. If there's one thing George Foreman knows how to do well, it's eat. As one of the world's top boxers he had to develop eating habits that both satisfy his healthy appetite as well as help maintain a fit and powerful body. Along with bestselling author and nutritionist Cherie Calbom, he has written "George Foreman's Knock-Out-The-Fat Barbecue and Grilling Cookbook."

When George Foreman came to town, people waited in line nearly a block long for three hours to touch the champ and to have their books signed. The lovable champ played with the children and everyone in awhile when he spotted someone familiar he gave them a strong shake and a tight hug.

When Wanda McGlover of Wanda's Wondrous Works presented a beautiful African vest to Foreman he grabbed her and gave her the biggest bear hug ever. The kids were happy with the champ's interaction.

The book signing was hosted by Phenix Information Center located in downtown San Bernardino.

Food Stamp Crackdown in Riverside

"Operation Round-Up" is an undercover operation conducted by a multi-agency task force consisting of officers from Riverside Police Department (R.P.D.), U.S. Department of Agriculture Office of Inspector General (USDA-OIG), and the State of California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC). The operation began in March of 1996.

The USDA-OIG was conducting preliminary investigations in the Riverside area of businesses participating in the Food Stamp Program administered by the USDA Food and Consumer Services. At the same time, ABC was in the preliminary stages of conducting inspections on businesses licensed to sell alcoholic beverages which were on a problem/complaint list. Riverside Police Department Property Crimes Unit was preparing to conduct an undercover program targeting locations that investigations had revealed were possible acceptors of stolen property. A comparison of the individuals and businesses revealed that the agencies had common ground for a joint operation.

The objective of the investigation was to focus on property crimes including buying, receiving or concealing Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations, and a continuing enforcement by USDA to combat fraud and trafficking in the $27 billion food stamp program.

Most of the premises being investigated were licensed by the Department of ABC. Twenty-eight felony food stamp transactions have resulted in 157 business owners and/or their associates being arrested and charged with trafficking in USDA food stamps. Some of the suspects bought food stamps for 50% of their face value. If they were an authorized food stamp retailer, they redeemed the food stamps through their banks at full face value. Unauthorized businesses sell the food stamps at a markup to unscrupulous authorized retailers.

Thirteen businesses out of twenty seven that were tested failed and either accepted food stamps in violation of the program guidelines and section 10980(G)(2) of the Welfare & Institutions Code (unlawful use, transfer, sale purchase or possession), or they accepted stolen property in violation of section 496 of the California Penal Code (buying, receiving or concealing stolen property).

Over $80,000 in food stamps and $13,500 in currency were three automobiles, including an Oldsmobile sedan and a Mercedes Benz. Several stolen property transactions were also conducted. Items of property used in these transactions included power tools, computers, VCR's, and fax machines.

USDA-OIG Special-Agent-In-Charge David Dickson said "This is not only a food stamp fraud matter, but also a public safety issue for the people of Riverside County. The work of Grover Trask, District Attorney for Riverside County, Riverside Chief of Police Ken Fortier, and District Administrator Jack Brewer of the California State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is an outstanding example of the effectiveness of cooperative efforts between federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies in combating fraud in the food stamp program, enforcing ABC regulations, and promoting public safety."

Additional charges against Riverside County subjects are expected in the coming weeks. Similar joint operations will be conducted in San Bernardino, Los Angeles, and Orange counties in the next few months.

Universal Lifeline Telephone Service Gave Us The Power To Be Connected!

We're both retired, and we've had to cut way back on our expenses. We even thought we would have to give up our telephone, just to make ends meet. But, with GTE's Universal Lifeline Telephone Service (ULTS), we can still be there for our loved ones and stay in touch with our friends. And in case of emergency, help is just a phone call away. There's no deposit. Just an installation fee of $10 and $5.62 per month covers our basic telephone service. We're so glad we found out that GTE offers ULTS. Now we can stay in touch for half as much!

ULTS was designed for folks with low income. So, if your household income is $16,500 a year, or less, you may qualify. It's easy to enroll, just call 1-800-846-8611 and ask about it. It's so good to know that with GTE and ULTS folks like us have the power to be connected!

To Qualify: To get Lifeline service, you must meet five qualifications established by the California Public Utilities Commission.

- 1 You can only have one telephone line in your household. (There is no limit to the number of telephones.)
- 2 Your total household income cannot be more than $16,500 each year or 150 percent of federal guidelines, depending on your household size, as shown below:

Number of persons in Your Family:	1-2	3	4	5	6	7*
Annual Income:	$16,500	$19,400	$23,300	$27,200	$31,100	$35,000

*(Each additional person $3,900)
- 3 You are not listed as a dependent on another person's tax return.
- 4 You can only use Lifeline service in your primary residence, not a second home or business.
- 5 You must certify annually that you meet these eligibility requirements.

GTE offers other services that can help you control costs. Ask about GTE's calling options.
